NOTICE TO NEW CLIENTS

Now that your divorce proceeding has begun, here are some suggestions that can help you avoid common pitfalls. Some of them may not apply to your particular case or situation.

Upon the filing or service of the Summons, You are subject to automatic temporary restraining orders, which are set forth on the reverse side of the Summons. You may not (a) remove your minor children from California without the written consent of your spouse or a court order, (b) Cash in or change the beneficiaries of any insurance, or (c) dispose of community property. You may use community property to pay community debts and your attorneys' fees and costs in this proceeding. You may also use community property for your necessary expenses, although under some circumstances you may be required to reimburse the community later. You should not borrow money using community property as security or make gifts of community property without prior court approval or the written agreement of your spouse. You should check with me before entering into any large or unusual transaction.

Do not use violence or self-help under any circumstances, no matter how unreasonable or violent your spouse may be. If your spouse should engage in any act of violence toward you, contact the police immediately and let me know at once.

Do not conceal the whereabouts of your children from your spouse. Each parent is entitled to know where they are at all times, unless there are criminal or civil orders barring contact..

Do not enter into any agreements to buy, list or sell real property, including your residence, without the written consent of your spouse. You could be liable for damages to a seller, broker or prospective buyer if your spouse refuses to consent, because the signatures of both of you will be required.

Do not use extortion. Threats of criminal prosecution, disclosure to the Internal Revenue Service, and the like can make you liable for prosecution for extortion, which is a form of blackmail and a crime.

Do not cancel any insurance policies, including life, health, or auto, unless we have conferred about it.

Do not make plans to remarry on a specific date, unless I have advised you may safely do so. Remember, although there is a minimum six-month waiting period from the date of service of the Petition before the status of the marriage can be terminated, nothing automatically happens after six months. The court will terminate the marriage prior to trial, on your request, but it may impose onerous conditions on you in doing so.

Do not dispose of major assets or make commitments or agreements to do so without discussing it with me first and obtaining the approval of your spouse. By doing so, you may subject yourself to liability to your spouse, to third parties, and for taxes.

Do not be intimidated by threats made by the other Party. Your spouse may threaten that unless you do what he or she wants, such as firing your lawyer, agreeing to a settlement dictated by the spouse, or the like, "you'll never see-the kids again," or "I'll quit my job, move to Alaska, and you'll never see a cent." All such efforts at intimidation should be discussed with me. You will fee better and the problem can be dealt with at its source.

Do not agree to settle any major aspect of your case unless you have reviewed it with me first. The major issues should normally be settled at the same time, so that both sides may engage in the process of compromise and reach a mutually agreeable decision overall. If you make agreements or commitments with your spouse, even orally, and even though they may not be legally enforceable, they will have a strong psychological effect and make it difficult to negotiate if you later withdraw from the position after learning that you have unintentionally given up valuable rights, created tax difficulties, or the like. You and your spouse may divide personal effects, furniture, and other personal articles between yourselves at any time, and you are encouraged to do so, but normally I find that this can best be done after the other issues are resolved.

Do review your estate plan now. Do not wait until the case is over. Until the marriage is legally dissolved, your spouse remains entitled to inherit under your will or through intestacy (death without a Will) without regard to your pending divorce. Property held in joint tenancy will pass to your spouse on your death. Your will should be reviewed now and consideration given to severing any joint tenancies. You can dispose of your property by will now, even though the estate has not been divided.

If you follow these suggestions they will make your divorce proceeding go more smoothly, quickly and economically. Call me if any questions arise as we move ahead.

DOCUMENTS TO BRING WITH YOU

The following items should be brought to the office to supplement this questionnaire, if they are available to you:

- 1. Your paycheck stubs for the last 3 months, if possible.
- 2. Your spouse's paycheck stubs for the last 3 months, if you can obtain them.
- 3. Copies of your joint or individual income tax returns and corporation returns, if any, both State and Federal, for the past three years.
- 4. Deeds showing the legal description of your home and any other real estate owned by you or your spouse, individually or jointly.
- 5. The last monthly mortgage payment statement if you have one for real properties.
- 6. Partnership agreements & corporate records of any businesses you or your spouse are involved in.
- 7. Bank Statements for savings and certificates of deposit of individual or joint accounts held by you and/or your spouse.
- 8. List of corporate stocks and/or stock certificates, if possible, owned by you and your spouse, individually or jointly. Also, give name of broker or brokers.
- 9. Current life insurance policies, with statements reflecting any loans against them.
- 10. Bill statements covering the date of separation (or most current bill if not separated yet) for all outstanding debts.
- 11. A copy of any pension or retirement program statements, or investment program statements, that you or your spouse are participants in through your current or prior employment.
- 12. Copies of pink slips and/or registration slips to all automobiles or other motor vehicles owned by you or your spouse, individually or jointly.
- 13. A copy of any financial statement or statements of net worth prepared by you or your spouse for the purpose of securing bank loans or for any other purpose.
- 14. All documents of any business entities you or your spouse have invested in.
- 15. Any estate planning documents (wills or trusts).
- 16. Any written agreements you entered into with your spouse, either prior to or after being married, concerning your property or children.

ADDENDUM

This office also prepares Wills and other estate planning documents. We recommend that, in all dissolution actions, you immediately change your Will to reflect your current testamentary desires. At your request and upon separate retainer agreement we will prepare such documents.

In addition, if any property is held with your spouse as "joint tenants' you should immediately consider severing the joint tenancy so that you may leave such property to the heir of your choice. Please immediately inform us if you so wish to sever any joint tenancy.

This office does not represent clients in separate civil actions brought or claimed against their spouse as a so-called interspousal tort. You should retain separate counsel regarding same. Interspousal torts include such things as assault and battery claims, and the transmission of contagious disease from one spouse to the other. We can assist you in obtaining counsel upon request.

Please sign below indicating that you have read and understood this addendum.
